Prime MERIDIAN

When I was a kid Dodd's Townhouse was for "old" people – kinda like Holly Hock. (Sorry, but that's what I thought) So I didn't mourn or shed a tear when Dodd's closed its doors. But now the historic old place has been given a new life, a fresh face, and an innovative menu, with the opening of MERIDIAN, that, hopefully, won't leave the "old" crowd disenfranchised, but at the same time, will cater to a new generation.

Everyone knows I'm all about the "comfort" food. So I've designed your evening menu for you, based on our recent experience...

Soup. Start with the Smoked Corn Puree. Featuring red pepper, potato and bacon, it is not a "chowder", but it's unique, smoky flavor makes it seem like it was simmered over an open campfire.

Salad. Warm Spinach Salad. Featuring red onion, egg, tomato and mushroom with a smoked bacon vinaigrette. You can never go wrong with smoked bacon anything.

Entrée. Dry Rubbed Pork Tenderloin with sweet potato hash, chorizo and red chili. I'm happy just reading the words "sweet potato hash" much less having them accompany my pork tenderloin! Are you kidding me? It gets better, check out dessert...

Dessert. Okay here goes... Donuts and Coffee. Yep! Donuts and Coffee. Order it up, and a few minutes later an unassuming little brown bag shows up on your table. Inside? Piping hot, made to order, cinnamon coated, donuts! Served with a coffee flavored dipping sauce. It's a bag of heaven. You can thank me later.

The ambiance of this revitalized landmark is really great - rustic sensibilities with a modern edge. We were comfortably seated at a corner table with a panoramic view of the dining room on a very stormy, cold, night around 8:30pm. Comfort environs w/ comfort food made it a relaxing, low-key, evening. Make a reservation and go.

By the way, has anyone else been finding donuts in unconventional establishments? If so, I need to know (and Dunkin' Donuts doesn't count). Tell me at jmeriksen@kw.com
